A Sea Change in Public Broadcasting

A note from Cary Boyce, SPR General Manager and President

Dear Listeners,

Verne Windham is retiring. It's true. I've mentioned a sea change in public broadcasting, and for SPR this one is huge. His last day will be sometime this summer. His first day full-time at SPR was June 1, 1988, but he's worked here occasionally since Bloomsday 1984. This totals 38 years of helping SPR grow and serve our communities and listeners—in content, reach, and especially music and arts. Thank you, Verne!

In the next guide, I've asked Verne to offer some reflections of his nearly four decades here, and his views as such a major part of the musical community of the Inland Northwest. Verne's time and talents have touched literally thousands of lives, both as a broadcaster and a musician. It's a legacy to be proud of—and a legacy to honor. There will be an event to honor Verne at the station in the late summer or fall, and gifts in his honor may be made to the station, or to the SPR Fund for the Future with the Innovia Foundation at https://innovia.org. (And we beg you to think of this as "in addition to," and not "instead of" your donations that help us stay on the air.)

Verne leaves large loafers to fill at the station, and plans are in development now to determine what a replacement might look like. His departure is yet another signal that the one constant in life, and in public radio, is change itself. A public media sea change is now on our shores. Even as stable as SPR has been, we have several new faces at the station, as well as on the board of directors and the community advisory board. SPR is planning for the changes to come and those now upon us. We'll have more news of this and further updates in July.

Updates to Jazz Programming

by Doug Nadvornick, Program Director

We're saying goodbye to two established late night jazz shows on KPBX and replacing them with a trio of programs, two of which will be locally produced. Jazz at 100 and Jazz Odyssey are leaving the airwaves. Jazz at 100, a one-hour program which aired Tuesday nights at 10, took 100 episodes to celebrate 100 years of the genre, from the very beginning to the current jazz scene.

We will replace Jazz at 100 with a one-hour jazz program produced by SPR's business development director, Kathy Sackett. Kathy has a long and varied musical background. For years, she was the KPBX jazz director and KEWU station manager. Her program will begin on June 7.

On Fridays, Jazz Odyssey, a two-hour program which also aired at 10, focused on modern jazz and current players and groups. But the program's host and producer, Chris Kuborn, has stopped producing it.

To cover that time, we're extending Mike Grabicki's wide-ranging Friday Night Jazz program by an hour. It will now run from 8-11 pm.

In the 11 pm hour, we'll bring you Blue Dimensions. Host and producer Jonny Meister features a range of blues, jazz and related styles of music, featuring present-day artists and songs, sometimes interpreting classic songs and paying homage to the great history of jazz.

The new Friday night lineup will begin May 6. We hope you enjoy the additions. You can send your feedback to kpbx@kpbx.org or to our listener comment line at 509-232-6904.
