Advanced Coursework

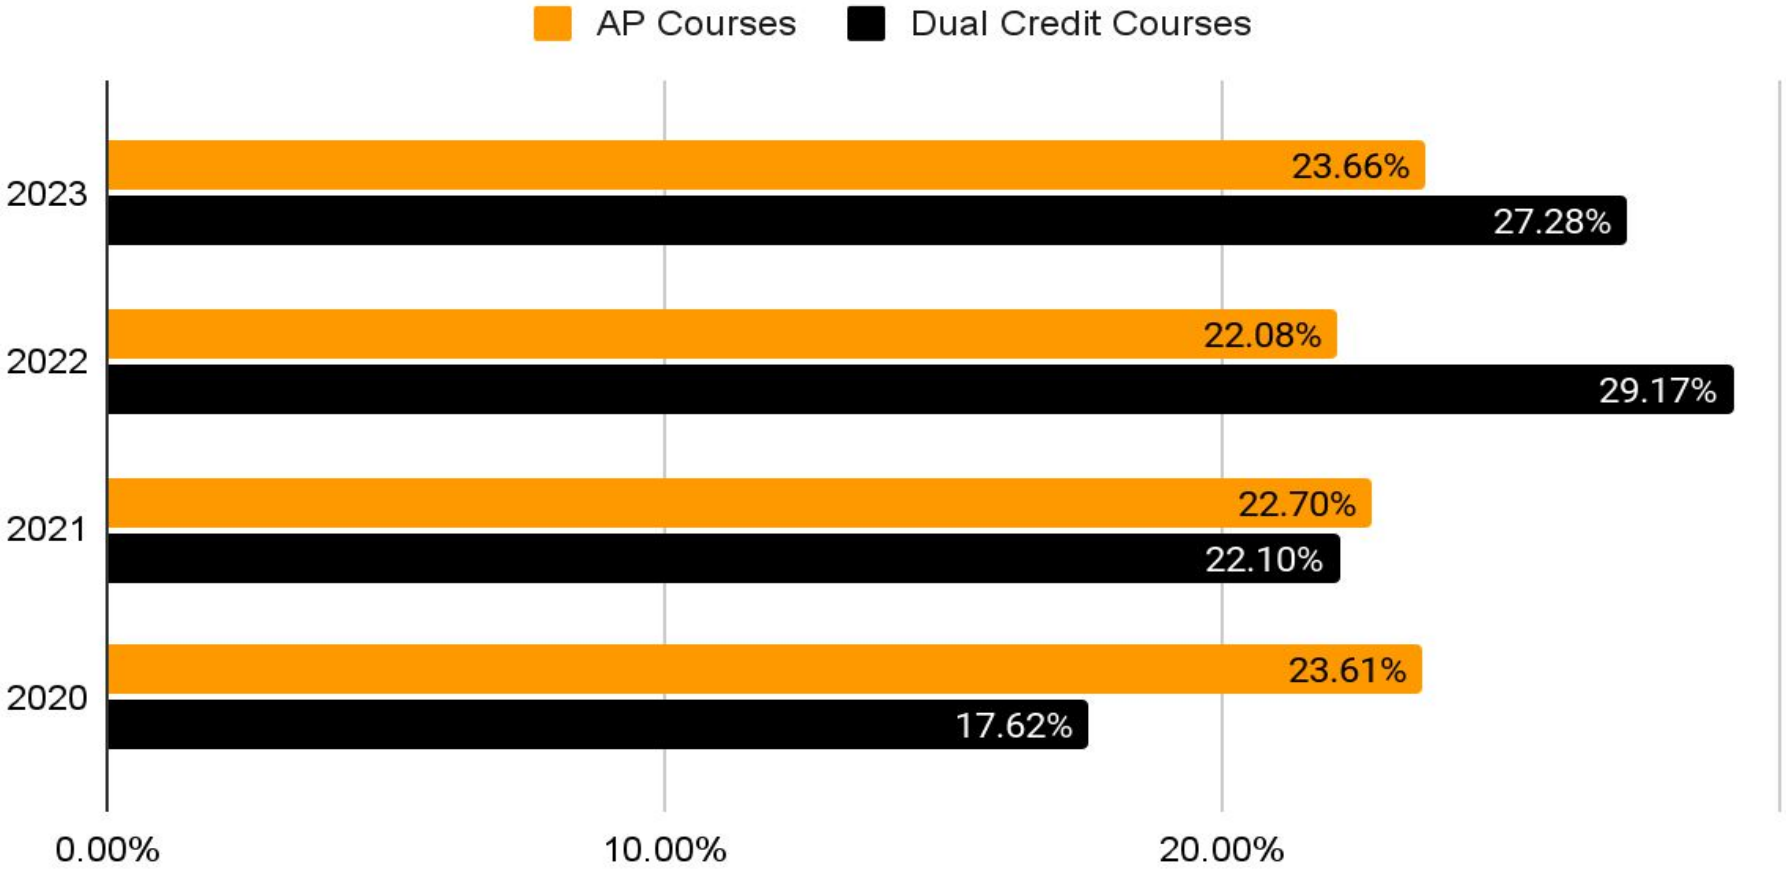

Advanced Placement

The Advanced Placement (AP) program is offered by The College Board and provides high school students the opportunity to take a three-hour exam in May to potentially qualify for college course credit. All students throughout the world take a given exam on the same day. Although The College Board does not mandate taking an AP course before completing the exam, it is much more likely a student completing an AP course will be able to attain a qualifying score.

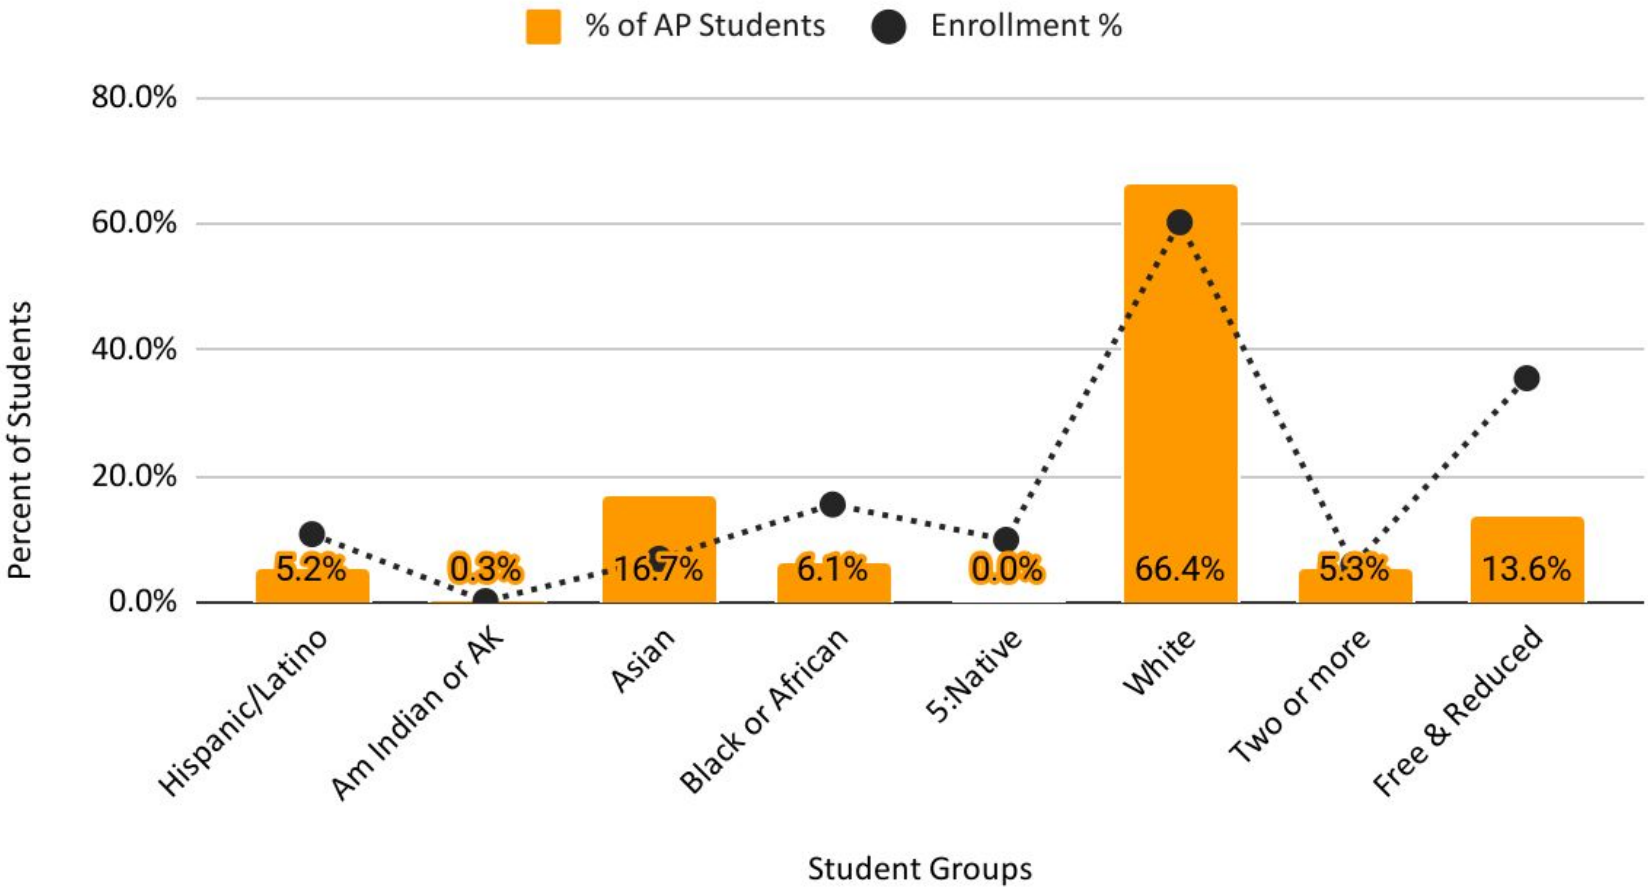

Dual Credit

Students who enroll in a dual credit course will earn high school credit (count toward graduation credits) and college credit for post-secondary institutions that accept the credit.
